

Do not accustom yourself to use big words for little matters. — Samuel Johnson Not knowing when the dawn will come, I open every door.

— Emily Dickinson A poem, a sentence, causes us to see ourselves. I be, and I see my being, at the same time. — Ralph Waldo Emerson I do not want people to be agreeable, as it saves me the trouble of liking them. — Jane Austen Write while the heat is in you.

— Henry David Thoreau The pen is the tongue of the mind. — Miguel de Cervantes True ease in writing comes from art, not chance, As those move easiest who have learn'd to dance. — Alexander Pope

Q P B N O T E B O O K

Brevity is the soul of wit. — William Shakespeare

When you catch an adjective, kill it. — Mark Twain

My occupation is solely that of a painter. No one can argue with pictures. — Louisa Mary Alcott

Words are, of course, the most powerful drug used by mankind. — Rudyard Kipling I never think

at all when I write. Nobody can do two things at the same time and do them both well. — Horace

You need chaos in your soul to give birth to a dancing star. — Friedrich Nietzsche And what is ice-told tale. — Homer One insanity. — William Blake The desire to write grows with writing. — Erasmus

Do not accustom yourself to use big words for little matters. — Samuel Johnson Not knowing when the dawn will come, I open every door.

— Emily Dickinson A poem, a sentence, causes us to see ourselves. I be, and I see my being, at the same time. — Ralph Waldo Emerson I do not want people to be agreeable, as it saves me the trouble of liking

them. — Jane Austen Write while the heat is in

you. — Henry David Thoreau The pen is the tongue of the mind. — Miguel de Cervantes True ease in writing comes from art, not chance, As those move easiest who have learn'd to dance. — Alexander Pope

Q P B N O T E B O O K

Brevity is the soul of wit. — William Shakespeare

When you catch an adjective, kill it. — Mark Twain

My occupation is solely that of a painter. No one can argue with pictures. — Louisa Mary Alcott

Words are, of course, the most powerful drug used by mankind. — Rudyard Kipling I never think

at all when I write. Nobody can do two things at the same time and do them both well. — Horace

You need chaos in your soul to give birth to a dancing star. — Friedrich Nietzsche And what is so tedious as a twice-told tale. — Homer One thought fills immensity. — William Blake The desire to write grows with writing. — Erasmus

ISBN 978-1-58288-275-8

9 781582 882758

PRINTED IN THE USA

122894